Judge Leathers Listens to Statements of Attorneys - Case Against

Holt in Circuit Court.

Judge Leathers yesterday heard argument on demurrer in the cases of Henry | the act of alighting, and was internally in-Schurman, E. J. Robinson and Cortland Jured. Van Camp against Mayor Taggart and Sterling P. Holt to recover money alleged to have been obtained by fraudulent representations. The plaintiffs we re stockholders in the Indiana Hinge and Wire Fence Company, and in their complaints they allege that they were induced to invest in the company by Taggart and' Holt upon the representation that it was a very profitable scheme. It is charged that a man named Millett, living in Louisville, Ky., held patent rights for making fence in certain counties in Indiana and Taggart and Holt secretly purchased this patent right, part of the agreement being allow her to talk at the dinner table, ridithat Millett should still represent that he her support, and was cruel. owned the right and in this manner act as an agent for the purchasers. He was to receive a percentage for his services. The charge is made that Taggart and Holt represented to their friends, among whom were the plaintiffs in the suit, that Millett held valuable patent rights for construcing a hedge fence and that the right could be purchased for $100,000. It was suggested | against defendant for costs. that a company of twenty be organized, each to subscribe $5,000, and make the purchase. Sixteen men agreed to each take $5,000 worth of stock. Negotiations were carried on with Millett, it is alleged, and the stockholders executed their notes to Millett, one for $2,500 payable in one year and one for $2,500 payable in two years. It is charged that Millett immediately turned these notes over to Taggart and Holt. The stockholders organized a company known as the Indiana Hedge and Wire Fence Company and dld a flourishing business for a time. At the end of a year business had declined and the notes became due. Not only were these notes due, but $40,000 in notes executed by farmers of Clinton county in payment for fence was also due. It is charged that Taggart and | contract. At the end of the second year it is charged that Taggart and Holt represented that Millett was clamoring for the payment of the notes of the stockholders and also the payment on the indemnifying bond on the Clinton county notes, as they had proved worthless.
